BACKGROUND

Cardiovascular disease remains the leading cause of morbidity and mortality worldwide, creating an urgent and continuous need for innovation, education, and collaboration in cardiovascular medicine. Rapid advancements in diagnostics, interventional procedures, medical devices, and pharmacological therapies require healthcare professionals to stay consistently updated in order to deliver optimal, evidence-based patient care. Scientific meetings therefore play a crucial role as a bridge between scientific progress and real-world clinical practice.

The effective management of cardiovascular diseases demands a strong multidisciplinary approach, involving not only various cardiology subspecialties—such as interventional cardiology, electrophysiology, imaging, and heart failure—but also close collaboration with emergency medicine, intensive care, anaesthesiology, radiology, and cardiovascular surgery. Equally vital is the contribution of nurses, technicians, and other allied healthcare professionals who ensure the successful implementation of cardiovascular therapies across the continuum of care.

In response to these needs, the Indonesian Heart Association Malang Branch, in collaboration with the Department of Cardiology and Vascular Medicine, Brawijaya University, will organize a series of high-impact symposiums and workshops dedicated to the latest updates in cardiovascular medicine. This event is specifically designed to translate scientific evidence, clinical guidelines, and technological innovations into daily clinical practice through interactive scientific sessions and hands-on workshops.

The meeting is expected to attract a wide and diverse audience, including cardiologists, other specialists, general practitioners, cardiovascular nurses, intensive care nurses, technicians, researchers, and allied health professionals from various regions. This creates a strategic platform for sponsors to engage directly with key decision-makers, clinicians, and end-users in cardiovascular care. Through scientific symposia, workshops, exhibition areas, and branded educational activities, sponsors will have the opportunity to showcase innovations, strengthen brand visibility, and demonstrate their commitment to advancing cardiovascular health.

Beyond educational objectives, this event emphasizes long-term collaboration and sustainable partnerships between professional organizations, academic institutions, and industry partners. By supporting this meeting, sponsors will play an active role in improving clinical competence, enhancing patient outcomes, and accelerating the adoption of innovative solutions in cardiovascular medicine. We strongly believe that this collaboration will deliver mutual benefits—maximizing educational impact while creating meaningful value for our sponsors and stakeholders.
